Remarkable Year

This year marks VINS 44th year of operation. Having much to applaud during this past year, we can decidedly call 2016-2017 “remarkable.” In numerous ways, VINS has made unprecedented strides in areas relating to programming, capital improvements, and overall number of visitors to the Nature Center.

Rooted in a small group of local residents whose aim was to clean up the Ottauquechee River, the organization currently features a top-notch environmental education program, a premier rehabilitation facility, a renowned Nature camp and Outreach program as well as a solid, Citizen Science program open to all members of the public. With its present full time staff of 22, VINS goes about its business like an expertly navigated boat in a championship regatta. Both the crew and captain’s high expectations, perseverance, and ingenuity have led VINS to victory in several categories this year.

Center for Environmental Education

The Center for Environmental Education has made extraordinary advancements under the direction of Hannah Putnam, M.Ed. Her outstanding leadership and forward thinking has kept the program in constant motion, by enrolling 25% more schools in the 2016-2017 academic year as well as retaining 90 percent of the participating schools during the same year.

VINS School Program’s remarkable progress is also credited to our new middle school educator, Michelle Amato, M.Ed., who focused and strengthened the Science Symposium component of VINS School Programs. Her solid command of subject matter and her hands-on instructional approach led VINS School Programs to host and facilitate the first Science Symposium with 4 participating schools, resulting in the engagement of 4 teachers and 150 students in the latter’s presentation of year-long research-based scientific projects.

Nature Camp

The Nature Camp program served its highest number of campers in nearly a decade. Under the highly talented leadership of Sarah Strew and her extraordinary support staff, they guided 454 kids in VT, NH and beyond. They learned archery, habitats of animals, and principles of respect and preservation of the outdoors among many other important lessons. This year, overnight camp in Washington, VT was introduced and enjoyed great success with more than 11+ campers in attendance. In addition, 59 scholarships were awarded to campers enrolled in both the day and overnight programs.

Outreach Program

The Outreach program also experienced a winning year in that it served more than approximately 16,000 children and adults. With signature raptor programs presented at venues such as libraries, schools, community centers, and resort areas, VINS Educators maintained a busy schedule throughout the year. Their exceptional talents benefited a large range of individuals, from preschoolers to seniors.

Center for Wild Bird Rehabilitation

The Center for Wild Bird Rehabilitation sailed to victory in treating a record number of avian patients, that is, 547. Injured birds from VT, NH and surrounding areas received outstanding care delivered by Lead Wildlife Keeper, Lauren Adams, and her spectacular staff. One patient was transported to Tufts Animal Hospital to undergo an operation to treat a damaged talon. The surgery proved wonderfully successful, and she was released into the wild. The rehab team indeed succeeded in many areas, including the implementation of extended hours and coverage of the center during which time a substantial # of birds were admitted. The staff and interns worked many extra hours to make increased accessibility a reality.

Citizen Science Program

The Citizen Science program, enhanced by the direction of VINS Educator Anna Attilo, was infused with vibrant life as she furthered work in the ornithology and amphibian programs. By fortifying our partnership with Cornell Ornithology Lab and creating connections with interested children and adults. This year our Backyard Bird Count program attracted more individuals. Anna has united numerous science professionals and everyday birders.

Visitors to the Nature Center

The overall number of visitors for 2016-17 reached a victory mark with 36,782 people visiting the Nature Center. This rise may in part be attributed to the new exhibits installed as well as the 2017 Owl Festival held in the new Pavilion. A record number of visitors, upwards of 2400, attended this annual event in February 2017.

VINS Pavilion

The newly renovated Pavilion represents a phenomenal accomplishment in that the original pole barn structure was transformed into a solid four-season venue. For the first time, VINS boasts a year-round exhibit, event, and meeting space with sophisticated sound systems and dynamic audio visuals. Employing green construction practices and building materials, this space now seats comfortably 150 guests.

Exhibits at the Nature Center

In 2016-17, VINS reintroduced fascinating, original exhibits such as Mammals on the Meadow and Birds Are Dinosaurs. The campus continues to add with the metal raptor sculptures of Wendy Klemperer and reed and wire works of fellow artist Bob Shanahan. In addition to Klemperer's entrance eagle, VINS has acquired Rob Ferris' abstract stone sculpture, whose presence fills the meadow with airy tranquility.

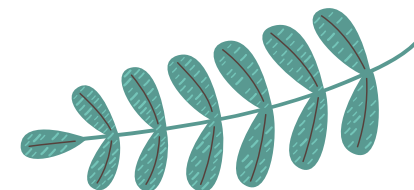

Board of Trustees

The composition of the VINS Board of Trustees has undergone several changes this year. VINS is pleased to announce that Joan Goldstein has joined the Board of Trustees. Joan brings an abundance of expertise and experience to VINS. Maureen Sheldon, Vice chair, stepped down following 5 years of dedicated service.

With profound sadness, VINS announces the passing this year of instrumental leader and co-founder June McKnight (1918-2016). This compassionate and fascinating woman is deeply missed.

Looking Ahead

And so, one more year of VINS' important work passes. Nearing a milestone anniversary, we look ahead to achieving new and loftier goals, while all the while thinking of how we can build from our remarkable achievements of 2016-2017.
