VINS IN RETROSPECT

THE NATURAL WORLD DOES NOT PAUSE

The COVID-19 pandemic has been challenging for all of us. VINS has been fortunate, and while we closed the doors on March 15, 2020, we were able to reopen to the public following the governor’s guidelines on June 13, 2020. We instituted a remote-working policy for staff immediately upon closing, except for those employees who were essential to caring for the birds and reptiles.

As you know, the natural world does not pause or take time out. The Center for Wild Bird Rehabilitation remained open daily, and had another record-breaking year! More than 1000 wild birds found their way to us. We could not have done this without the professionalism of the staff and the help of our dedicated volunteers.

We are grateful for the outpouring of support during this time of COVID-19 from friends and foundations. Their constant generosity has meant that we are able to maintain an uninterrupted focus on our mission of environmental education, wild bird rehabilitation and research.

VIRTUAL & OUTDOOR LEARNING AT VINS

Late summer is always an exciting time of year in VINS School Programs, as we help teachers get ready for the new school year.

With VINS’ long history of providing high-quality environmental and place-based education, we were well-situated to support teachers and families as they began to take their students outside.

VINS has long recognized that there are numerous advantages to bringing learning beyond the four walls of the classroom.

Schools are embracing the opportunity for more outdoor learning and all the benefits that come with place-based education. Among these benefits are increased teacher satisfaction and engagement, improved academic performance and decreased behavioral issues, as well as better overall health for students and teachers. When communities are especially focused on health and safety, an outdoor classroom is a perfect solution. It provides plenty of natural breezes and space for social distancing. Being outside can also reduce stress, helping people to feel more relaxed and less anxious. This is especially important during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Place-based education also nurtures strong community connections, and VINS is often one of those pillars of support and connection for schools. In addition to providing teachers with outdoor teaching tips, lesson ideas, virtual lessons and community connections, we also help teachers participate in different citizen science projects. We support local classrooms entering data into iNaturalist, and assist students who are tracking observations through Journey North, one of North America’s premiere citizen science programs.
In addition, we support homeschooling families by offering a series of lessons that engage parents and their children in the outdoors, science and nature discovery. The campus of the VINS Nature Center is an excellent classroom with space to learn in our meadow, forest and river's edge. Preschoolers and their families come to our outdoor classroom in the middle of our forest every other week to explore, play, sing and learn together. Little Explorers and Nature’s Adventurers also participate in virtual lessons that help them explore their own backyards and local natural places.

Lessons encourage students to dig deep, think critically, share ideas, explore, discover and ask questions about the natural world.

VINS RESEARCH ENDEAVORS

One of the new initiatives is a partnership with the Black River Action Team to inventory the different types of dragonfly species that are present in Vermont. This project is a collection of observations that are submitted by users of iNaturalist. The data we collect allows us to track the movements of dragonflies and gives us an idea of what species call Vermont home. Since there are 16 species of dragonflies in North America that are regular migrants, observations during this period can be helpful not only to our researchers, but also to others who may be interested in learning about dragonfly behavior and migration.

A similar database was created on iNaturalist in collaboration with the White River Partnership to inventory crayfish throughout Vermont.

This project is especially important to help track the spread of the Rusty Crayfish, an invasive species throughout the state, and to identify locations where native species are thriving and can be protected.

Fall also brings about more well-known migrations such as those of raptors and monarch butterflies. VINS began its fourth season of tracking the fall migration of monarch butterflies through monarch tagging, as part of Monarch Watch. Last season, we tagged 200 butterflies as they began their journey south. During the 2020 season, we were able to tag 100 butterflies.

VINS also created an official hawk watch site on Mount Ascutney in Windsor, Vermont. The site was created as part of the Hawk Migration Association of North America’s long-term hawk counting efforts.

WATERFOWL ENCLOSURE

Over the past couple of years, the number of waterfowl and other aquatic birds that the Center for Wild Bird Rehabilitation has cared for has more than doubled from just 35 patients in 2018 to 91 patients in 2020. With this increase, we found ourselves in need of an enclosure that specifically meets the distinct needs of these species. Plans were made for a water bird enclosure that includes a large freshwater pool for swimming, bathing and diving, appropriate substrate suited to the unique anatomies and behaviors of these birds, and an overall larger space to stretch their wings.

VINS IN RETROSPECT (continued)

VINS is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization whose mission is to motivate individuals and communities to care for the environment through education, research, and avian wildlife rehabilitation.

OUR MISSION
VINS is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization whose mission is to motivate individuals and communities to care for the environment through education, research, and avian wildlife rehabilitation.

OUR PRIORITY
Making high-quality, compelling, and fun environmental education programs and learning opportunities accessible to more people and communities.

OUR VISION
To promote and deliver integrated programs and services that are designed for a broad audience and address current ecological challenges. Specifically, VINS offers:

• An exceptional environmental education resource at the VINS Nature Center,
• conservation of our native bird populations through rehabilitation and education,
• creative collaboration with other organizations, and
• support for focused environmental research.
HIGHLIGHTS

- The Nature Center closed to the public March 15 through June 13 due to the Covid-19 pandemic
- VINS experienced an outpouring of financial aid from supporters and benefited from a number of federal and state programs
- Despite closing the Nature Center during the Covid-19 pandemic, VINS was able to keep all permanent staff employed
- The construction of the new August Pavilion was completed in early June
- Volunteers returned to the Nature Center in early July
- VINS opened all indoor and outdoor exhibits in mid July
- Nature Camp sessions took place in July and August, with Covid-19 safety protocols in place
- Virtual school lessons and outreach programs were launched online
- VINS launched a new winter nature camp held in February
- The Center for Wild Bird Rehabilitation reached an all-time high of 1025 patient intakes
